

Which of these kids would you decide to expose to toxic chemicals, radioactive waste and polluted air?

Andrew lives in Broome County. Jessica lives in the Catskills. Governor Cuomo seems to think it would be okay to expose Andrew and his family to the serious potential health effects of living near hydro-fracking operations, while Jessica and her family continue to breathe clean air and drink clean water.

We disagree.

Governor, there is no part of New York State where it would be okay to conduct an uncontrolled human experiment on our citizens, where the full impact will only be known decades from now, long after the gas industry has made its billions, the jobs are gone and the wells are abandoned.

You told us you would be the children's lobbyist. We're waiting.

Let Governor Cuomo know what you think!
Call his office right now at (518) 474-8390
or email: <http://www.governor.ny.gov/contact/GovernorContactForm.php>